

JSS PS students conduct Test For good

Test for good was an initiative taken up by KHDA where we as students were invigilators and the teachers and parents became students for a day and were made to write a small test. The objective of the Test for Good was to generate funds for the Autism center in Dubai. It aimed at enabling adults have a fun and memorable time by revisiting their school days. This initiative sent all participating teachers and parents into a flashback wherein they recalled their joyous lives at school. Many schools including ours took up this initiative.

This event in our school took place on 29th April 2015. All the students who took part had the time of their lives invigilating the teachers and parents for a change. It was amazing to see the excited children invigilate the teachers they normally get invigilated by. The children for a change had fun in stepping into their teacher's shoes.

On the other hand if we talk about the teachers and parents who wrote that test, the responses that we got were of them talking about their memorable times in school while writing an exam and how the fear of writing one always made them nervous.

Test for good was truly one of the initiatives that brought about a lot of happiness among the parents, teachers and students and JSSPS would like to thank the KHDA for organizing something so interesting.
